Window Mart certifies it produces certain windows and doors that qualify as Building Envelope Components and may be eligible for tax credits as defined in the American Taxpayer Relief Act of 2012. President Trump extended this Act and affects projects completed in 2012, 2013 and projects completed by December 31, 2017. This tax credit was extended to include 2015 (retroactive), 2016 and 2017 (announced 2/28/2018). A tax advisor should be consulted to determine if you qualify for tax credit under this Act.

The 2012 Tax Credit offers 10% of the cost of the home improvement up to a maximum of $500. Windows can only account for $200 of the available $500 and improvements must be made on an existing home and principal residence. Windows must meet the 2010 Energy Star ratings for both the U Factor and Solar Heat Gain based on the region of the country you are located. Please refer to <http://www.energystar.gov/> to determine your region.

Window Mart states that its windows and doors listed by clicking HERE on the internet or attached (if hard copy requested) meet or exceed the energy efficiency standard set forth in the Act of 2012 as well as Energy Star required performance numbers.
